nce upon a time, in a far-away land called Daven-try, there ruled a King named Graham. A hero whose brave deeds had won him the crown, Graham ruled with a kind but firm hand, and the people of Daven-try prospered under his reign.

One day, while contemplating the loneliness that had come to consume him, King Graham was distracted by a vision in the magic mirror which he often consulted. In it he beheld the most beautiful maiden he had ever seen. His heart felt as though it were ablaze. "Oh mirror wise," he inquired, "Where am I to find this fair maiden whom I vow to make my queen?"

"The maid Valanise of the kingdom of Kolyma is known for her wisdom no less than her beauty. The jealous witch Hagatha holds her prisoner in a quartz tower guarded by a wild and ferocious beast."

"Where is this tower to be found?" inquired the king.

"Search Kolyma for the keys that will unlock the three doors to an enchanted land," the mirror replied.

King Graham queried as to the whereabouts of the keys, but no more clues were forthcoming. Undaunted, he shouldered his provisions and set out on the long journey to Kolyma.

o with King Graham, in search of the magic keys that will lead him to the fair maiden for whom he longs. Explore underground caverns, eerie towers, and ocean wonderlands.

WANT A HINT?

Send for your official Sierra hint book today!

For every problem in this game, there's a solution. And of course, you would rather work them all out yourself. But there are times when even the most brilliant adventurer gets stumped. That's when you need a friendly hint to set you on your way again.

Our hint book is written by the same people who design Sierra games, so you know they're complete. The clues are grouped to give you only as much of a hint as you need, without revealing anything that might spoil your enjoyment of the story.

Even if you've completed the game, the hint book gives you insights into the game that allow you to experience more than you might have on your own. But don't use the hint book before you've tried every angle you can think of -- the greatest pleasure in playing an adventure game is in solving the puzzles and problems using your own ingenuity!

Purchase your hint book from your local dealer, or use this coupon to order from Sierra On-Line, Inc.
